

WILSON'S CHANGE OF TACTICS IN ADDRESSES BRINGING RESULTS IN WEST

(BY DAVID LAWRENCE)
(Copyright 1919 by The Times Publishing Co.)
ENROUTE TO KANSAS CITY, MO., Sept. 6.—President Wilson did much better at Indianapolis and St. Louis, than at Columbus. Not only did his speeches take better with the crowds, but the people seemed to be moved to high pitches of enthusiasm which were totally lacking at the outlet. The president has evidently been advised that the people want speeches with a punch to them. For in both Indianapolis and St. Louis he adopted the Rooseveltian tactics for the first time in his career and brought his audience to its feet again and again. That is a new thing with Woodrow Wilson. Usually he depends upon the quiet, deliberate processes of oratorical persuasion. Today he is changed. He is belligerent. He is making the fight of his life and if his speech at St. Louis which seemed to make the best impression thus far is an index of what he plans to do, the public can expect Mr. Wilson to arouse the nation on the issue of the league to degree of passion and fervor hitherto absent on either side of the controversy. The president is reducing his argument to simple statements. His appeal to the St. Louis chamber of commerce was especially intended for business men. His plea to the farmers who gathered from all parts of Indiana, was a vivid portrayal of the horrors of another war. His challenge to critics was a defiant call for a substitute program if they intend to defeat the proposed league. His central effort is to show that the opponents of the league have picked their ground there, but have said nothing of the constructive possibilities of twenty-three out of the 26 articles of the covenant. Briefly, the main trend of Mr. Wilson's argument as now revealed is this:

1. If the treaty is not ratified by the United States, Europe will go ahead without us and the United States will be left out in the cold, discredited and distrusted.
2. The reparations commission is really a group of receivers sitting over the bankrupt assets of Germany. That commission will determine how Germany shall pay her reparations, where she will buy materials and how she will get credits. Mr. Wilson says that if only from a practical business point of view, America cannot afford to stay out. America's trade and industrial life are interwoven in the economies of Europe.
3. The president points to the invasion of Belgium as a violation of territorial integrity and says that any one who is against article ten would forget Belgium and weak nations.
4. To the Irish, the president makes an open bid for support by hinting that America cannot intrude upon England's affairs now but that under a League of Nations, Ireland can get a hearing and the moral support of the United States.
5. With respect to foreign wars and sending troops across the seas, Mr. Wilson emphasizes that American boys cannot be compelled to fight unless the representatives of the United States in the league's council so advise and our representative would be under instructions to take no such step without the sanction of congress.
6. Faith in Japan's intention to return Shantung to China is expressed without qualification by the president and to those who don't trust Japan and want to give the territory back to China immediately, Mr. Wilson addresses this question: "How will you take Shantung away from Japan when Great Britain and France are pledged already and have been pledged for two years to give Japan all the rights which

President Replies To Arguments Of Peace Treaty "Reservationists" Pershing Home Again; Given Royal Welcome In East

Reservations Are Discussed For First Time

OMAHA, NEBRASKA, Sept. 8.—Discussing for the first time during his speaking tour, proposed reservations to the League of Nations, President Wilson replied in an address here today to arguments advanced by those who favor reservations.
"A reservation," said the president, "is an ascent with a big 'but'. We agree—but?"
The proposed reservation providing for unconditional withdrawal from membership, said the president, meant that its sponsors wanted to "sit near the door with their hand on the knob," and if they saw anything they did not like to "scuttle and run."
The league provides that international obligations must be fulfilled before withdrawal could be made. The United States, he said, because this nation always would live up to its provisions.
Those who wanted a reservation to Article 10, Mr. Wilson continued, simply said to him "come in now, but wait to see how it goes."

Germany, Failing To Get Peace, Decided U-Boat Warfare Necessary

By GEN. ERICH VON LUDENDORFF
DANGEROUS additional strength was given to the enemy's numerical superiority (late in 1918) by the ever-increasing devotion of their industries to war purposes. Far-reaching restrictions on labor were passed into law in Entente countries, and there was no shortage of raw materials; the output per man had not fallen and life, in short, pursued its normal course.
The seas of the world were open to the Entente. The United States was now giving help on the largest scale, and breaking new ground. The technical equipment of the Entente armies grew continually stronger and more complete, reaching indeed an unprecedentedly high level. This was demonstrated with pitiless clarity on the western front.
In the east too the campaign of 1918 had shown a feasible increase in supply, especially in ammunition. Russia had to some extent established a war industry of her own, in part in the Donetz coal basin, and had greatly increased her output. Japan was steadily giving better deliveries. With the completion of the Horman railway, and the improvement of the Trans-Siberian line, an increased import from Japan, America, England and France was inevitable.
In every theatre of war the Entente was able to add to her numerical superiority an enormous additional strength in every department of technical supply, and to destroy our troops on a still greater scale than had been achieved on the Somme and at Verdun.

Entente Gains Strength in Increasing Output of War Materials; German Reserves, Need for Defense, Could Not Be Used for Attack; Question of Morale and of Insufficient Foodstuffs Weakened Position of Government at Home.

THOUGHT WILSON WOULD MAKE PEACE OFFER BEFORE HIS 1916 RE-ELECTION
Much could be done—and had to be done by our industries to increase our strength, but plainly no little time would elapse before any arrangements to this end could be carried into effect. It was clear that our munition factories, in spite of their immense output, and however many workmen they might have, would never be able to overtake the enemy so long as the enormous industrial areas of the latter continued to work undisturbed under what were virtually peace conditions. In the then circumstances it seemed impossible to achieve equality of forces.
With our sensible inferiority in numbers and equipment, training for defensive warfare became more important. It was obvious that our army must be equipped, organized and trained to the highest pitch, and everything possible was done to achieve this. We knew, however, only too well that the enemy would soon adapt himself to our new tactics, and that our advantage was only temporary.

The supreme army command had to bear in mind that the enemy's great superiority in men and material would be even more painfully felt in 1917 than in 1918. It was plainly to be feared that early in the year "Somme fighting" would burst out in various points on our fronts, and that even our troops would not be able to withstand such attacks indefinitely, especially if the enemy gave us no time for rest and for the accumulation of material.
Our position was unusually difficult, and no way of escape was visible. We could not contemplate an attack ourselves, having to keep our reserves for defense. There was no hope of a collapse of any of the Entente Powers. If the war lasted, our defeat seemed inevitable.
Economically we were in a highly unfavorable position for a war of exhaustion. There was weakness at home. Questions of the supply of foodstuffs caused great anxiety, and so too did questions of morale. We were not undermining the spirits of the enemy populations with starvation blockades and propaganda. The future looked dark, and our only comfort was to be found in the proud thought that we had hitherto succeeded in defying the enemy's superiority in numbers, and that our line was everywhere beyond our frontiers.

STIRRING TRIBUTE TO GENERAL

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Pershing is home again!
Standing on the bridge of the huge Leviathan, itself a symbol of victory over Germany, the commander of the greatest host ever gathered under the stars and stripes, came slowly up the bay today, world famed and hailed as a conquering hero should be.
Sad of face, stern and impassive, a splendid figure of a soldier, he might have been thinking as the familiar land marks of New York came into view, of the day 27 months ago when he slipped secretly out of the harbor on his way to France to prepare the way for the hosts that were to follow. Then he was only a major general.
He came back today with four stars on his shoulder—the fourth since Washington to wear them, under the American flag.
The welcome given him would have quickened the pulse of a hero of a Roman triumph. Fresh from the capitals of allied Europe where honors had been heaped upon him, it remained for New York to show the first American to lead an army across the Atlantic that "home sweet home" has a meaning deeper than "hall to the chief!"
No foreign throats could voice the cheers, no alien hearts could pulse the greeting that was General Pershing's here today. There was a hint of tears in the welcome for those who gazed at him, for they knew that not even the plaudits of a grateful people could banish from the mind and face of a soldier the memory of his own life's tragedy.
Dawn barely had broken when the Leviathan found their midst off Ambrose channel lightship. Straining slowly through the narrow passage way, the great steamship was greeted by a convoy of six destroyers, while searchlights gleamed over her.
A general's salute as the ship pulled was once the pride of Germany's fleet past, quinine and used then to narrow waters into the harbor under the shadow of the statue of liberty.
While the guns still echoed, the whistles of merchant vessels from the seven seas, stately ships, gaily decorated ferry-boats, excursion craft of every kind and sirens of factories on shore joined in a discordant salutation.
Thousands Line Shore
The shore of Staten Island, Brooklyn, New Jersey and Manhattan were lined with thousands whose shouts of greeting came faintly across the waters of the bay. The familiar figure on the bridge. They made up the vanguard of the vast army of war.

WILL REPORT PEACE TREATY WEDNESDAY

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 8.—The peace treaty will be reported to the senate next Wednesday noon, Chairman Lodge of the foreign relations committee, announced today. It is planned to call up the treaty for debate beginning next Monday.
The only way the Senate provision could be bettered, Mr. Wilson declared, would be to go to war with Japan, England and France. He told the crowd the nation "could not sign all but a part of a treaty."
"We cannot reverse this treaty," he said. "We must take it or leave it." He said he believed the treaty should be accepted soon, but added:

BRITISH ARE EVACUATING ARCHANGEL

LONDON, Sept. 8.—Evacuation of Archangel by the British expeditionary forces is in progress, it was officially announced here today.
AH! ANOTHER PROBE STARTS
WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—A senate foreign relations subcommittee was ready today to start an investigation of the Mexican situation, which it is expected will cover several months. Many witnesses will be called and hearings will be held in Washington, New York and on the Mexican border. The subcommittee, of which Senator Fall, Republican, New Mexico, is chairman, has given notice that it will go into the matter thoroughly. The Rev. Dr. Inman, of New York, and officer of the League of Free Nations, was summoned as the first witness.
WEEK OF REPLIES TO WILSON
WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—Replies from the floor of the senate to President Wilson's speeches to the country and negotiations between senators advocating "strong" reservations to the League of Nations covenant and those supporting "mild" reservations are expected to be the outstanding features of the ninth week beginning today in the peace treaty controversy.
While several members of the senate are preparing to reply to the president's addresses in various cities, others were known today to be planning to answer from the senate floor to Mr. Wilson's assertions.
Efforts by the "mild" and "strategic" reservationists among league opponents to reach an agreement were expected to be pressed preparatory to the filing Wednesday of majority and minority reports of the foreign relations committee by Chairman Lodge and Senator Hitchcock, ranking Democratic members, respectively.

Three Killed And 40 Injured In Fire On American Warship

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Sept. 8.—Reports of the death of three members of the crew of the U. S. S. New Mexico, flagship of Admiral Hugh Rodman, and the injury of 40 others in a fire aboard the vessel here last night, were confirmed today by officials who directed the fire fighting.
Special Trains Carry Miners To Home Grounds
HUNTINGTON, W. VA., Sept. 8.—The armed invasion of Logan county attempted by approximately 3,000 members of the United Mine Workers of America from the Kanawha and Coal River fields, ended Sunday, when the men were conveyed to their homes on two special Chesapeake & Ohio trains, authorized by Governor John J. Cornwell.
One of these special trains left Huntington at one o'clock Sunday afternoon, and another special was assembled at Charleston, and sent up Coal river an hour earlier.
When the trains arrived at Danville and Clodier, the two main places of assembly, the men had reconsidered their decision to invade the Logan-coal field via Etzel, which is about sixteen miles from the city of Logan. At Danville, approximately 1,200 miners, mostly from the Kanawha fields, had camped Saturday night and Sunday morning. During Sunday about 2,000 miners, mostly from the Coal River organizations assembled at Clodier.
Men Accept Statement of Governor
The men, apparently, had accepted the statement of the governor that he would investigate conditions in Logan county, and they said they believed they would be enabled, as a result of their demonstration in force, to accomplish a peaceful conquest of Logan mines, on behalf of organized labor.
The decision of the miners prevented the possibility of bloodshed in an armed encounter between the miners and forces of the state and the United States government. Had the miners decided to cross the "dead line" which the governor had set at Danville, two regiments of United States troops were ready for entrainment within six hours of the Logan county line. In addition to these forces which had been placed at the command of the governor by the war department, deputy sheriffs of Logan county, and other units of the state police force were prepared to resist any attempt to invade Logan.
Sunday was the stormiest day the Coal River district had known for years.
The men were turned back, according to the best information available, largely through the efforts of C. Frank Kenney, president of District Number 11, of the mine workers' organization. Kenney made his views known to the

VETERANS IN REUNION AT CAPITAL

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 3.—Many hundreds of union veterans of the civil war continued to arrive on all incoming trains this morning for the annual G. A. R. encampment, which will be held this week in Columbus, opening formally tomorrow.
Old soldiers from many states with the west far leading the east in representatives, are in the city and thousands more, officials in charge of the encampment say, are coming. Special trains and regular trains yesterday brought the veterans—thousands who, as boys, wore the union blue in the days of '61.
The first convicts spent the Sabbath night seeing "Hoys" from Pennsylvania, Ohio and eastern states chummed with former comrades from states as far west as the Pacific during the day, recalling by-gone days in camp or battle.
Citizens have been asked to see that the veterans are housed and fed during the encampment. A few old soldiers, wearing their battle scarred uniforms and medals for valor in action, were conspicuous among those who arrived.
A parade in which the veterans and soldiers who fought in the world-war are to take part is to be held Wednesday as the big feature of the encampment. Governor Cox, former Governor James E. Campbell, who is director general and chairman of the encampment, Mayor Keith and Commander in Chief Garretson F. Adams, are scheduled to give addresses at the semi-official meeting and reception for the veterans at Memorial Hall this evening.

FIFTEEN CAUGHT IN RAIDS

The police had on their raiding clothes again last night, when they swooped down on two shantytowns located near the old water works plant on Mill street, where poker games were in progress. The two raids resulted in the arrest of 15 men, who are charged with gambling.

Charles Price and James Graycraft, were found participating in a game of poker on Martin's boat, and the entire bunch was brought to police headquarters.

This raid was staged at 7:30, and 20 minutes later the officers, headed by Chief Clark, visited another shantytown and took into custody five men, who are charged with gambling.

Two of the alleged gamblers in trying to escape jumped into the river, but after getting in the water they were glad to come to shore and surrender after a time.

The defendants were all later released on furnishing bond for their appearance for trial in police court tonight.

The puma, the most athletic and powerful of all cats for its size, is a coward only where man is concerned. There is abundant evidence of its having tried to effect a truce with mankind, showing a decided tendency at times toward actual friendliness, but its appearance, its terrifying cry, its slight wandering and its tendency to prey on man's domestic creatures have marked it with enmity, and its persistent destruction has cleared it out of all but the wildest sections.

JACKSON NEWS

JACKSON, Sept. 8.—Judge Robert J. Grimes sustained the action of the Civil Service Commission of Wellston in dismissing A. D. Ward from the position of Chief of Police of Wellston.

The charges against Chief Ward were filed by Mayor Fred H. Ely some weeks ago, and Chief Ward was suspended at the time and his place given to James Fisher, a patrolman. The Civil Service Commission sustained the action of the Mayor and now the Court of Common Pleas sustains the Board's action.

The position pays $100 a month.

It may be mentioned that the mayor of two Republicans and one Democrat, Fisher his successor is a Republican. The Civil Service Board consists of two Republicans and one Democrat and the Common Pleas Judge is a Democrat. Ex-Chief Ward was represented by Willis A. Jones and A. E. Jones represented the Mayor and Board.

The charge which led to the suspension was the use of A. D. Ward who is now sixty-two years old, and who it is alleged has suffered a slight stroke.

Ray Brunton, a temporary carrier on West 4th at Oak Hill was arrested Sept. 5 at the Iowa Industrial School at Lancaster and was ordered to leave there Sept. 8 to begin on his sentence.

Brunton is only seventeen years old and was appointed as temporary carrier on June 2, and according to Postmaster Frank Wanner of Oak Hill he was appointed him, he was guilty of the first offense on June 2.

The offense for which he was arrested August 5 was the falsifying of a check which he had abstracted from a letter entrusted to the mails. The check was for $425 and was mailed by E. L. Lehnert of Hamilton township to a Chicago Mail Order house.

Brunton raised the check to $425, altered the name of the mail order house and wrote in that of Fred Lehnert of Hamilton township, doing the writing with his right hand. Then he altered the check in the name of Fred Lehnert being his left hand to do the writing.

The check was cashed for Brunton by John Shaffer of the firm Shaffer and Matthews who have a general store in East Oak Hill.

These facts were admitted by Brunton when confronted with the matter.

before Judge Frank Delay in the Juvenile Court and he was sentenced. He is the first postal official in the history of Jackson county found guilty of tampering with the mails.

The money received from Shaffer and Matthews has been refunded by Bert Brunton father of the lad.

The case against Brunton was worked up by H. L. French U. S. Post Office Inspector living at Athens. He turned the case over to the State authorities on account of the age of the defendant who is thus treated as a delinquent child.

A damage suit of great interest to county commissioners all over Ohio was lost by the commissioners of Jackson county Sept. 5, when the jury brought in a verdict for $20,000 for Miss Fannie Overly, the plaintiff, who was represented by Hon. Benner Jones and E. E. Endicott. Prosecutor John G. Evans was assisted by C. H. Jones in defending the county.

The accident occurred on the Petersburg pike, in Scioto township, August 23, 1917. The petition was filed August 1918, the plaintiff asking for damages in the sum of $20,000, and the case came on for trial Sept. 5 and continued nearly three days.

A little red sweater was the immediate cause.

It belonged to young Frances Hartley, who had been one of the guests at the birthday anniversary party of Mrs. Samuel Overly. In the evening she started home in a single seat buggy, drawn by a horse about thirty years old, with three ladies, Miss Fannie Overly and Mesdames Minnie Walker and Dora White, mother and sister.

After going some distance, the sweater was remembered, and they drove back to the Overly home for it. After securing it, the horse for some reason began backing, and the buggy and the four women were hurled down a deep embankment, unprotected by any bridge or fence. Two of the ladies suffered fractured skulls, and Mrs. Walker was injured less seriously.

The suit of Miss Overly was the first tried. Those of Mesdames Walker and White are pending. The three asked for damages in the sum of $20,000.

Summers of the black listing of Jackson furnace workers by industrial plant owners in other cities led to the clash between a furnace worker and a furnace operator in Jackson Sept. 3, and the event has attracted much attention in labor circles, an account of the prominence of the parties concerned.

Frank Osborne, who had been employed by Jackson before the lockout of the furnace workers as they call it, or the strike as the furnace owners regard it, went to Columbus to seek employment and brought back a report that Jackson furnace workers are black listed.

The first furnace workers local No. 15, 1574, at their regular meeting Sept. 1, elected James Hensley to go to Columbus with Frank Osborne and Neph G. Spangler, who is superintendent of Jisco Furnace, to investigate the matter.

A furnace worker told Spangler that Hensley had been appointed, but he said that he would not accompany him because he had lost confidence in him. The man, Ben Dillinger, by name, reported back to Hensley, and on Sept. 3 Dillinger asked Spangler on the street and Dillinger asked him to tell Hensley his reason for refusing. Spangler repeated his statement that he had lost confidence in him.

Other remarks followed until Hensley making direct remark about blacklisting, and the two were passed, and Hensley began to be struck. There is some difference of opinion, Hensley claiming that Spangler struck him first after passing the Mr. Spangler claims that he declared any connection of his name with blacklisting a lie, but denies that he struck the first blow.

Both were arrested by order of Mayor E. C. Laird, and they had a hearing on the night of Sept. 3, when Spangler entered a plea of guilty to fighting, while Hensley's plea was that he fought, but in self-defense. The mayor, after receiving the two pleas, took the case under advisement until he could examine Ben Dillinger, the witness to the affray. That was done Sept. 4, and Spangler was fined ten dollars and the costs, and the mayor then released James Hensley, the delegate of the blast workers. The mayor's office was thronged with spectators during the hearing, and his decision was applauded. The incident is regretted by all, but when red blooded men meet in street demonstrations, something always happens.

The labor situation remains unchanged. The lockout, or strike, began the first week in July. Soon thereafter, at the suggestion of the furnace workers, a committee of business men was appointed at a public meeting to seek some adjustment of the differences. The committee were J. H. Newsham, Judge Frank Delay, David Armstrong, Lee Hartlage, well known in Portsmouth, and Isaac I. Perry.

This committee labored diligently for several weeks, and finding all efforts fruitless they reported back to a public meeting and were discharged. Thereupon the furnace workers asked Hon. Edwin Jones, who is himself a stockholder in the Globe Iron Co., to become a mediator in the trouble. Up to this time no definite action has been taken by him, beyond notifying the furnace owners that he has accepted the appointment at the hands of the furnace workers.

The labor trouble in Jackson has not extended to the iron industry in Wellston, where there are two other furnaces.

Politics is beginning to be a feature of the labor trouble. Already James Hensley has been nominated for president of council on the Democratic ticket. His name was written in on the ballot the day of the primary by a sufficient number of voters to make him a candidate.

E. C. Laird, the present mayor, was defeated for re-nomination, and when the trial was held, it was thought that he would file his petition as an independent candidate.

The nominees at the primary were E. C. Horton by the Republicans and John Dauber by the Democrats. Laird is a Republican.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS
CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—Corn trading showed a disposition to adopt a waiting attitude today pending the issuance of the government crop report this afternoon. Opening prices, which ranged from 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 decline to 1 1/4 advance, with 1 1/4 @ 1 1/4 and December 1 1/2 to 1 3/4. The close was followed by a moderate general setback and then something of a rally.
The close was weak 1/2 to 1 1/2 net lower with September 1 1/2 and December 1 1/2 to 1 3/4.
Oats held steady with corn. After opening, 1/2 off to 1/4 advance, including December at 72 1/2 to 74 1/2, the market closed down slightly and then scored a little upturn.
In provisions was nearly at a standstill. In the absence of any aggressive support quotations inclined to sag.
Sharp breaks which subsequently took place were ascribed to absence of demand, either domestic or export.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS
CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—Corn trading showed a disposition to adopt a waiting attitude today pending the issuance of the government crop report this afternoon. Opening prices, which ranged from 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 decline to 1 1/4 advance, with 1 1/4 @ 1 1/4 and December 1 1/2 to 1 3/4. The close was followed by a moderate general setback and then something of a rally.
The close was weak 1/2 to 1 1/2 net lower with September 1 1/2 and December 1 1/2 to 1 3/4.
Oats held steady with corn. After opening, 1/2 off to 1/4 advance, including December at 72 1/2 to 74 1/2, the market closed down slightly and then scored a little upturn.
In provisions was nearly at a standstill. In the absence of any aggressive support quotations inclined to sag.
Sharp breaks which subsequently took place were ascribed to absence of demand, either domestic or export.

OBITUARY
Edward F. Pettigall
Death in sudden form came to Edward F. Pettigall one of the city's best known residents late Saturday night at his home, 1729 Fifth street. Heart trouble brought on by excitement earlier in the evening caused death.

Mr. Pettigall was downtown as usual Saturday afternoon. During this time a feel man had delivered a bale of hay to the stable and about five o'clock Mr. Pettigall assisted by a friend started to take the bale of hay up to the loft. Mr. Pettigall was helped the bale of hay to the top of the stable stairs and the man in front led his horse causing the hay to fall. This caused Mr. Pettigall to fall down several steps. He suffered a sprained ankle and was badly shaken up. In the evening he complained of severe pains in his chest and about 10:30 a physician was called. A half hour later Mr. Pettigall passed away, despite every effort that was made to prolong his life.

The deceased was born near Middletown, Md., in 1851. He came to this city thirty-five years ago when he took charge of the Singer Sewing Machine Company's business here. He was connected with the company up until the time of death.

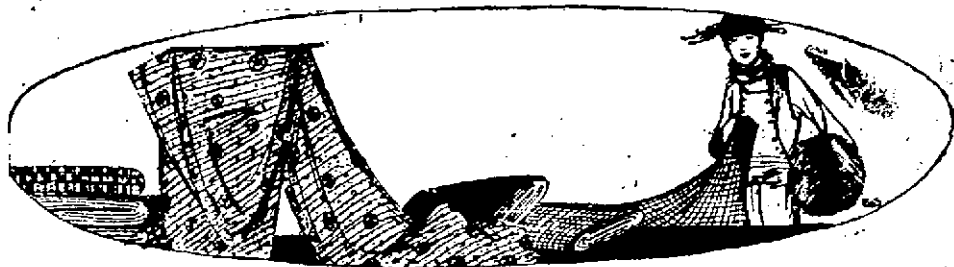

Mr. Pettigall was united in marriage to Miss Florence Fitch in Vanceburg, Ky., about twenty-seven years ago. The deceased had been in the best of health and only last Thursday returned from a three week's vacation spent near his old home in Maryland. He had a wide circle of friends who will learn of his demise with much surprise and genuine regret.

Hesides his beloved wife, one son, Charles Pettigall of Douglas, Ark., and one daughter Mrs. Mona Bond of Los Angeles, survive. He also leaves two brothers S. H. Pettigall and Elmer Pettigall of Maryland and one sister Mrs. Elvira Rihm of Indiana.

Mr. Pettigall was a Mason and also a member of the Royal Arcanum.

He had been a member of Biglow church for a number of years and Rev. C. E. Chandler, pastor of that church, will have charge of the funeral services which will be held from the home Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Burial will be made in Woodland cemetery in Vanceburg Wednesday morning.

LUDENDORFF

The Field Marshal and I were fully at one in this anxious view of the situation. Our conclusion was no sudden one, but had gradually grown upon us since we took over our posts at the end of August, 1914.

As a result of our opinion the construction had been begun as early as September of powerful rear positions in the west; the Meuse line, running from Arras, west of Cambrai, St. Quentin, La Fere, Bailly-sur-Aisne, to flatten the wide salient from Albert, Roye, southwest of Noyon, Soissons, Bailly-sur-Aisne, in which the Somme fighting had made a large indentation, and the Meuse line, which lay to the south of Verdun and in front of the line St. Mihiel, to cut off the salient of St. Mihiel.

These strategic positions had the great advantage of shortening the front and economizing forces, and their occupation was prepared in detail. Whether we should retire on them, and how the positions would be used, was not, of course, decided in September, 1914; the important thing then was to get them built. This made comprehensive measures necessary, and I demanded heavy labor supplies from home. These, however, only sufficed for the west, and corresponding positions in the east had to be left unoccupied.

The construction of positions, the trading of the army for defensive warfare and the enlistment of the civilian population for war work constituted weapons of war of the greatest importance. They were capable of postponing the decision if the Government once succeeded in bringing the people wholeheartedly into support of the war, but they could never lead to victory.

The future was thus full of obscurity, and the soldier could not reckon on chances, so that the questions of peace and submarine warfare became of the highest importance. There was the problem of obtaining peace, the chance of defeat without unrestricted submarine warfare, and the possibility of victory by means of such a campaign, accompanied by an attack by our surface fleet and a defensive war on land.

The description "unrestricted submarine warfare" is not wholly apt, any more than is "submarine warfare without regard of consequences."

Faith for Wilson Peace Offer

The Chancellor was, in September, 1914, giving consideration to a possible negotiation for peace through President Wilson. Many circles in Germany were ill-disposed to such a step, since the attitude of benevolence adopted by the U. S. A. toward the Entente had raised increasing bitterness among us, and the Government could with difficulty disregard this opinion.

The Chancellor nevertheless proposed to His Majesty that instructions should be given to Ambassador Count Bernstorff to induce the President at the earliest possible moment, and in any case before the Presidential election at the beginning of November, to make a proposal of peace to the powers.

I was fully in agreement with the suggestion and secretly very pleased that it was made, although I was secretly of success owing to my view of the enemy's desire for our destruction. Their prospects for 1917 were so much more favorable than ours that, even while I hoped for it, I had grave doubts as to the chances of any offer from President Wilson. I waited with the greatest eagerness to learn whether he would make a proposal in October; let his reelection in November and the whole of the month of November passed without his making up his mind to do so, and I gave up any hope of his intervention.

Faith to Exhibit Weakness

Count Bernstorff then came forward with the proposal that the Quadruple Alliance should itself make a direct offer of peace to the enemy. I was equally sceptical as to the success of this scheme, but thought that it should be tried; the only thing to avoid at all costs was any display of weakness. This would have had a very bad effect on the army and the public, and would have encouraged the Entente to strengthen their efforts for our destruction.

So far as he permitted, I cooperated with the Chancellor in the matter. In order to avoid giving the enemy the false impression that weakness was our motive for the proposal, I asked that it should not be carried out until the campaign in Romania had been brought to a conclusion. Bernstorff fell on the 6th of December, and with that I regarded the military situation as so secure that I had no objection to the publication of the peace note. The proposal for compulsory auxiliary service, which had meanwhile been passed into law, gave the appearance of a determination to continue fighting if our offer was rejected.

His Majesty took a most earnest interest in the peace offer, displaying clearly his high sense of his responsibility to bring peace to the world at the earliest possible moment. On the 12th of December the peace offering of the Quadruple Alliance was made. There followed an exchange of views as to the conditions of peace which we would be prepared to offer, which was, however, destined to meet its end in the despatch to Count Bernstorff of the 20th of January, 1917.

Wanted Morale of Troops Kept Up
The reception of our offer by the Entente press was wholly unfavorable. It soon became clear that it would be impossible to come to an understanding. The Entente had its hands tied by arrangements and secret agreements that could only be carried out if we were completely defeated. The answer of the Entente, given on the 20th of January, was such as to leave no doubt of their intention to annihilate us. Their objection that the tone of our offer had from the first made any acceptance impossible was quite unavailing.

Our whole position compelled us to adopt a tone of confidence. I advocated this from the military point of view. Our troops had done marvels. How would they be affected by our adopting any other tone? It was essential that the peace offer should not impair the fighting quality of the army; and it did not do so, for it was only an episode and the morale of the troops was still good.

If the Entente had honestly desired a peace of justice and reconciliation, it could and should have entered into negotiations and brought forward its demands. Had negotiations broken down on any demand for annexations on the part of the German representatives, it would have been easy for the Entente, in the light of such an attitude, to stir their peoples to renew the war, while we in such a position would have been quite unable to reconcile the German people, who were already longing for peace, to any further fighting.

Still less would our weary allies have continued to fight at our side. This simple reasoning shows convincingly that, when we made our offer, we were genuinely ready for peace of justice and reconciliation.

Failure of Wilson's Effort

The attitude of the Entente on this point on every subsequent occasion shows equally clearly that she wanted no negotiations that might display to the world our sincere desire for peace. She feared that this would lead to a weakening in the desire for our destruction in her own camp, and wished also that peace, when it came, should be definitely a peace of defeat and emancipation for us.

Meanwhile President Wilson had at last, on the 20th December, addressed a note to all the belligerent powers, inviting an expression of "their views as to the terms on which the war could be brought to an end." The President apparently desired to find an agreement by means of a compromise between the demands of the two sides. He had in mind a peace without victor or vanquished.

The note was delivered on the 21st December. The German Government had been informed of the President's intention in November. Presumably the Government was by this time, after the long delay, in doubt as to whether the President would in fact carry out his intention, but I am not aware in any detail of the Government's then attitude.

As early as the 28th December the Governments of the quadruple alliance proposed an early meeting of representatives of the belligerents in some neutral country. They were at variance with Wilson's proposal to the extent that they preferred direct negotiations with their opponents; this may well have been in part due to regard for the strong trend of public opinion in Germany against the United States.

Voice of the "Iron Lloyd George"

The Entente remained wholly hostile. His answer of the 12th January was a confirmation of her note of the 20th December, being perhaps still more strongly imbued with the intention of destroying us. The voice of the latter answer is the voice of the Iron Lloyd George, who at the beginning of December had assumed, in form as well as in substance, the reins of power in England. It is useful to recall the answers of the Entente to our offers of peace and to Wilson's note. The judgment of many people as to the possibility of a peace of understanding will then become clearer.

Thus failed the two efforts to achieve peace. By the will of the Entente the war had to continue, and to be decided by force of arms. It was to be victory or defeat. The results were further preparations on a large scale, the maintenance of our determination to fight—this our proposals were designed to achieve—and at the same time the employment of every weapon in Germany's arsenal.

The Field Marshal and myself, in our view of the whole situation and in our only too correct doubt as to the success of the peace proposals, had already had under consideration, as part of our military problems, the possibility of carrying on the submarine campaign in an intensified form.

Unrestricted submarine warfare was now the only means left to secure in any reasonable time a victorious end to the war. If submarine warfare on this scale could have a decisive effect—and the navy felt that it could—then in the existing situation it was our plain military duty to the German nation to embark on this form of warfare. (Published by special arrangement with the McClure Newspaper Syndicate. Copyrighted, 1915, by Harper and Brothers. All rights reserved. ## WILSON'S CHANGE OF TACTICS

Germany enjoyed? Does America want to fight Great Britain and France and Japan, and is that the way to keep America out of war? Mr. Wilson presents no apology for Japan, but says Great Britain and France had promised her Shanghai in order to get Japan to come into the war and help keep the Pacific clear of German raiders. Mr. Wilson admits the bargain and denounces secret treaties, but says the ready for the whole deplorable plight of China lies in the League of Nations and its processes for revision of all grants of territory to the other powers as well as Japan.

Finally, and this where the president always makes his biggest hit, he reminds his hearers that America went into the war to end war, that conscription was put into operation and liberty loans were floated and hard earned dollars were taken from American pockets and sent to foreign graves not merely to beat Germany, but to prevent any other nation from trying the experiment which Germany tried. Nine days of discussion he contents would have been enough to prevent the last European war as Germany wouldn't have gone in if she knew England would fight and she would certainly have held her horses if she dreamed America might come in. Now, the president out, nine months would be provided for arbitration or discussion before there could be war and if there were war, the economic boycott would be effective, stubborn nations would be starved into submission, they would be commercially isolated and financially bankrupt unless they accepted the verdict of mankind. If the league isn't set up and Europe goes on as it has been, he thinks there will be more war and America will be drawn into it and our losses will not be a couple hundred thousand, but many millions of men. So it will be seen from the foregoing that the president is appealing to the peaceful instincts of the American people and the deeply imbedded passion for peace which elected him in 1912 on a platform of "Keep us out of war," and then supported him wholeheartedly on a platform of freeing the world from militarism and of safeguarding democracy. Mr. Wilson cynically recalls the enthusiasm of certain of the league's opponents when America entered the war and says that when he led America into war to put an end to the war business, he meant it. Dramatically he exclaims that he would not be able to look into the face of a widowed wife or a bereaved parent if he came back from Paris without a program to end future wars. To those who would turn away from the weak and helpless in Europe, the new nations which hitherto have been the pawns of the strong because no power interfered in their behalf, Mr. Wilson applies the epithet—"Contemptible!" And it is mild language compared to that which he will probably use before he gets through in denouncing those in America who, he thinks are selfishly refusing to see the job through.

Slowly but surely the president is drawing a line between the peace at any price elements who wanted to war Americans off the high seas and wanted to amend the conscription act so our troops might not help the allies and those who supported the war with Germany in the hope that out of it would come some kind of a concert of moral and physical power to preserve peace. Mr. Wilson admits that in the covenant but says they can be corrected in time and that unless the league is set up now, the whole international combination which was set up to beat Germany will fall apart and will not easily be brought together again.

Business men who heard the president at St. Louis—and his appeal to eschew party politics drew loud applause from the many Republicans present—said afterwards that Mr. Wilson made headway. Some said they had not understood before how deeply American business was involved in the controversy over the league. The St. Louis chamber of commerce is hardly Wilsonian. Men sat at the guest table who had attacked him bitterly heretofore, but when he said that he was touring the country not as a party man but as an American, they jumped to their feet and joined in the applause and cheers.

Unquestionably, Mr. Wilson will make a better impression as he removes from the public mind the notion of party politics, which he unfortunately built up when he took only men of his own personal predilection to Paris with him and ignored the Republican party. The present Republican leadership on the treaty is not popular. Leading Republicans here and there as we travel whisper to us that they think the course of Senator Lodge and Senator Knox is mistaken but they also say the president's tactics hitherto have made many party men. Woodrow Wilson might be the last to admit it but his professions of political disinterestedness and his clear exposition of articles in the treaty on which he has heretofore been vague

Governor Cox Endorses "Finish The Job" Week

Today is the first day of "Finish the Job" Week, during which Scioto County will subscribe in pledges for the 1919 War Savings quota.

The goal set by Chairman Mark W. Selby is $500,000 in pledges by Saturday evening.

During the week a canvass will be made of the downtown district, of each industry in the city, and of the rural districts. In this manner, the "Finish the Job" message will be brought into every Portsmouth home.

It, however, by chance, you are not a school, and desire to join the other patriotic citizens of the county, stop at the War Savings booth on Gallia Square, between the hours of 2 and 5, any afternoon this week and make your pledge.

If you desire a solicitor to see you, or if you have any questions to ask, please call War Savings Headquarters, phone 2241.

There is no question but what Scioto County is going over, and going big. But there is a chance of failing in the last big drive of the war, unless each does his part to the best of his ability.

The eyes of Ohio are on Scioto County. Chairman Selby received a letter from Gov. Cox expressing the latter's best wishes for the "Finish the Job" campaign.

When Saturday evening, Sept. 13, comes around, this old county is going to loom up big in the eyes of Ohio, which has led the nation in the sale of War Savings Stamps.

His yours today.
The Governor's letter follows:
Mr. Mark W. Selby,
Chairman, Scioto County War Savings Committee,
Portsmouth, Ohio.
My Dear Mr. Selby:

This letter is written in response to yours of September first, and is for any use to which you care to apply it in the most helpful cause of having Scioto County complete her war savings quota for 1919 in "Finish the Job Week."

We are too proud to look upon Armistice Day as the end of the war, but when we look about us at the unrest and lack of stability in all circles we need take stock of the situation to realize that peace is not fixed until the treaty has been accepted as a finished document. The work undertaken is perhaps not at an end even then. The machinery, set in motion for the successful outcome of a war brought to an end in an almost unbelievable time, is so stupendous that obligations continue of necessity to be met in only slightly lessened degree.

Not the least of consideration, by all means, is the integrity of our country. We must keep the faith on obligations incurred even though it may seem to us in our limited way of knowing that all war expenditures need not have been continued. It is not an easy thing to get ready for war; nor is the matter of getting out of war any simpler.

The state of Ohio has made good on every call—every subdivision of the state has made good—and I am sure that every proper effort will be put forth by Scioto County to "Finish the Job."

Very truly yours,
James M. Cox.

are also good colors for afternoon affairs.
Dear Miss Wise—I was to a picnic recently and some one brought such wonderful ground ham sandwiches. Can you tell me how to make them?
PORTSMOUTHITE.

One cup of 1/2 pound chopped ham, enough good vinegar to moisten well, one tablespoon of peanut butter, a few drops of very strong extract, pepper and salt to taste. Mix well and you will have the best ham sandwich you ever ate.

Dear Miss Wise—Please publish a recipe for green tomato pickles and also mangoes. I want your opinion of a married woman that has a good man to work and make a fine living for her. She is always pushing herself on a single young man whose mother and father are dead. She gets around him every day he has his money, not even allowing him to spend money. His folks have already seen what can be done with her and if she continues running after him she surely will have to face some serious charge. What is your advice?
R. Y. R.

Uncooked Tomato Pickles—chop 1/2 peck ripe tomatoes fine; three heads of celery and 2 red peppers with seeds removed; add one cup brown sugar; 1/2 cup salt, 1 tablespoon black pepper, 1 teaspoon each ground mace, cloves and cinnamon. 2/3 cup black and white mustard seed mixed. 1 cup grated horseradish, and 1 quart of vinegar. Mix all together thoroughly. Put up in jars or bottles. Keep one month before using. This is splendid. A recipe for mangoes appeared in Sunday's Times.

The lady seems to be a regular vampire, and the young man an "easy mark." I think he is at fault more than she, and so is her husband. If her

Came to this Woman after Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Restore Her Health

Ellensburg, Wash.—"After I was married I was not well for a long time and a good deal of the time was not able to go about. Our greatest desire was to have a child in our home and one day my husband came back from town with a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and wanted me to try it. ## Children Need Food Often Give Them Jersey Corn Flakes

ANY time of the day that the children get hungry, a dish of Jersey Corn Flakes is the ideal food to serve them. They love the crisp, golden brown flakes and the food is so nourishing too—just what the children need to keep them strong and healthy.

The grown-ups enjoy them just as much as the children. The pleasing natural flavor of the corn is brought out by our superior toasting process, and their flaky, brown crispness is retained after being served in milk. They never get sticky.

ADDITIONAL STATISTICS ON SERVICE DEPARTMENT

The following is another installment of the state examiner's report on the service department. Other installments will follow in The Times from day to day.

September 5, 1917, Council passed ordinance No. 2448 authorizing the issuance of bonds in the sum of $500,000 for the purpose of providing funds for construction and repairing bridges and culverts within the City of Portsmouth, to be placed to the credit of the "Bridge Improvement Fund" and to be disbursed therefrom upon proper vouchers, for the purpose of paying the cost and expense of constructing and repairing bridges and culverts.

In accordance with the provisions of the above ordinance, bonds in the amount of $500,000 were sold to the sinking fund trustees and the proceeds placed to the credit of the "Bridge Improvement Fund" on October 31, 1918.

December 21, 1917, Council passed ordinance No. 2472, appropriating $20,000 of the funds available in the Bridge Improvement Fund for the purpose of paying the expense of building wagon bridges at Harborside street and across the sewer ditch in the Scloto bottoms.

In accordance with the provisions of the above ordinance, Ralph Calvert, director of service, entered into a contract with Thomas Evans for the construction of a bridge across sewer ditch in Scloto bottoms at a price of $20,000, which was paid December 22, 1917, through warrant No. 421.

In addition to the above contract entered into for the labor in the construction of said bridge, there was also paid to The H. Lee Lumber Co. on December 22, 1917, through warrant No. 423, $25.00 for lumber used in constructing said bridge.

An agreement was entered into between the director of service and James Park, Jr., for the construction of a bridge on Harborside street, between Jackson and Sixth streets. Through the terms of the agreement Mr. Park was to be paid for the actual amount of lumber used, plus a rate of $5.00 per day for carpenter work. In accordance with the terms of the agreement James Park, Jr., was paid $138.85 on December 22, 1917, through warrant No. 422.

At the time of the passing of ordinance No. 2448 and prior to the sale of said bonds, it became necessary to expend from the general fund $26,475 for the purpose of paying the legal advertising in connection with the said bond issue as well as for printing the bonds. In order to reimburse the general fund for such expenditures, Council on December 21, 1917, passed resolution No. 2756, transferring the said amount to the general fund.

The following is a statement of the receipts and disbursements attendant upon the "Bridge Improvement Fund" during the period covered by our audit, March 1, 1917—September 30, 1918:

PUBLIC COMFORT STATION AND TOILET
February 7, 1917, ordinance No. 2282 was passed by Council authorizing the issuance of bonds in the amount of $7,500.00 for the purpose of paying the cost and expense of erecting a public toilet and comfort station, the said amount to be placed to the credit of the Public Toilet and Comfort Station Fund to be disbursed upon proper warrant to pay the cost and expense of erecting the comfort station and toilet.

After due advertising and at competitive bidding the above bonds were sold during May, 1917, to the Central National Bank, the proceeds being placed to the credit of said fund.

At a meeting of Council held June 6, 1917, Council passed ordinance No. 2119 appropriating the sum of $7,000.00 to be used for such purpose. At the time of passing the above appropriation measure Council also passed ordinance No. 2422 employing Bitter and Bates, architects of the City of Portsmouth, to draw up plans and specifications and supervise the construction of a public toilet and comfort station, fixing the compensation of said architects and appropriating funds therefor in the sum of $350.00.

The ordinance provided that the said architects should receive as compensation for their services the amount of five (5) per cent of the total cost of labor and materials used in the doing of said work in full payment for all work that they may do, as above mentioned, with reference to the construction of said public toilet and comfort station. The said compensation to be paid as follows: first, three (3) per cent on the completion of the drawings and specifications when the same are finally approved and ready for bids, and shall first have been formally approved by the Council of the City of Portsmouth and the director of public service; second, the balance of two per cent shall be paid in monthly installments to the architects in the proportion that the estimate made each month and based on the net amount paid to contractors for work actually done during that month bears to the estimated cost of the entire work until the amount of ninety per cent of the amount due said architects shall be paid, and the balance of ten per cent of the total amount due said architects shall be retained until the final acceptance of the work by the director of service and said amount retained shall be paid to said architects within thirty days from and after said final acceptance by the director of public service.

In connection with the passage of the above ordinance Council exceeded its authority in becoming an employment agent as that was a duty vested directly in the director of service, since the work to be completed was under the direct supervision of the director of service.

In accordance with the provisions of the above ordinance bids were advertised for and a contract awarded on September 21, 1917, to Mr. C. E. Nourse, at his bid $5,120.00.

October 2, 1917, a contract was entered into between Ralph Calvert, director of service and C. E. Nourse of Portsmouth, Ohio for the construction of a public comfort station and toilet to be erected in the Gallia street Plaza as per direction of architects at his bid of $5,120.00, with the stipulation that should marble be substituted in place of slate the above bid should be increased to $11,200, making his bid total $5,538.00.

At a meeting of the board of control held September 25, 1917, it was agreed to substitute marble in place of slate, hence the complete bid and contract price of Mr. Nourse was $5,538.00.

In addition to the original bid of $5,538.00, it was disclosed by the audit that certain extra work was agreed upon and paid for yet a careful and diligent search of the records failed to disclose where any supplemental contract had been entered into for said work, and as per the statement of the director of service, none were entered into so far as he remembered, he stating that they had left said work to be attended to by the architect.

In this connection we desire to state that the duties of the director of service are specifically provided for in Sections 4324 and 4325 G. O., and no other employe or agent has any right, in law, to usurp such powers. The duties of the director, as contained in the provisions of the above sections, are mandatory and when he fails to comply with such provisions he is neglecting a duty clearly imposed upon him by the law which at some future time might prove fatal to the interests of the city. We might further state that in permitting the extra work, in the sum of $1,611.64 to be commenced and completed before entering into a supplemental contract, the director of service failed to observe the provisions of Section 4321 G. O. which provides as follows:

"When it becomes necessary in the opinion of the director of public service, in the prosecution of any work or improvement under contract, to make alterations or modifications in such contract, such alterations or modifications shall only be made upon order of such director, but such order shall be of no effect until the price to be paid for the work and material or both, under the altered or modified contract, has been agreed upon in writing and signed by the contractor and the director on behalf of the corporation, and approved by the board of control, as provided by law."

The provisions of the above section are mandatory and were placed upon the statute books to be observed, and for the purpose of protecting the public. Not only does the above quoted section prohibit the completion of such work without first entering into a contract but the provisions of Section 4403 G. O. provide that such contracts must first be approved by the board of control, which, so far as ascertainable from the records, they failed to do.

Under the provisions of Section 4322 G. O., no contractor shall be allowed to receive anything for work or material caused by any alteration or modification, unless the contract is made in such manner, nor shall he be allowed to receive for such work and materials, or either, more than the agreed price. The general provisions of law relating to the requiring of bids and the awarding of contracts for public buildings, and improvements, so far as they apply, shall remain in force and effect.

As disclosed by the bills rendered for payment, and paid, the amount of extra work done without a supplemental contract consisted as follows:

Item	Amount
Extra light in ceiling	$ 122.00
Extra marble and cement work	108.00
Extra water proofing and cement plaster	125.00
Extra Terrace floors	200.00
Extra channing doors	12.00
Extra raising plumbing pipes to top of floor	22.44
Extra standard plumbing fixtures	200.00
Extra Blower Urinals	315.00
Total amount of extra work	$1,611.64

Inasmuch as no supplemental contract was entered into for the above noted work and in view of the conditions as above stated we are rendering a finding as an illegal payment for the money paid the contractor in the amount of $1,611.64 for such work.

Best line picture "DOROTHY DALTON" Hard Luck

Philopoy theatre patrons will be interested to know that Dorothy Dalton, the brilliant Thomas M. Ince star, turns the tables on a familiar dramatic situation in "Hard Luck," her new Paramount picture that will be shown at the Columbia theatre tonight and tomorrow.

Instead of the little country girl being stranded in the city and having to work out her salvation, she plays the part of the big city girl—the prima donna of a musical comedy company—stranded in a decidedly luck town. The small town has built reputations for the metropolitan miss as the great city has for the unsophisticated lass. That it is a greater problem to make a livelihood in the country by a girl trained to the ways of crowded streets than it is in the city by a girl from the farm, is convincingly portrayed.

"DRIVEN TO BURGLARY BY LOVE" NOW CORRECT PHRASE: "NO DRINK" IS ANTIQUATED

New Source of Relief for Desperation is Pictured with Laughs and Thrills in "Burglar By Proxy"

With the coming of prohibition practically assured, prospects are extremely unlikely that love affairs will drive men to drink. However, in "Burglar By Proxy," the latest Jack Pickford picture which will be shown commencing tomorrow at the Lyric Theatre, love drives a young man to burglary.

Taking the part of Jack Hobbs, in love with Dorothy Mason, Pickford is taken into the Mason home when he is found apparently unconscious with his head resting on a blown-out automobile tire in front of Dorothy's house. A three-day period of his deliriousness which gives Jack a

Treat 'Em Rough, a Western Feature at the Lyric Tonight

Few stars have sprung full armed into popularity with motion picture audiences than Tom Mix has done with Lincoln patrons. The hard-boiled, quick-thinking, fast-shooting cowboy whose middle name is "Tex" has certainly made good with a bang from start to finish. If you have not seen him, for his admirers will be sure to don't miss him tonight in "Treat 'Em Rough," a Western feature extremely. Besides this Mix special feature there will be a dandy comedy scream full of big laughs.

Two big pictures, a dandy two reel Western drama and a two reel comedy screen form tonight's program. Pete Morrison is the star in the Western feature, "The Four Gun Man." It is a Universal picture, which means it is a good one all the way through. Pete Morrison is a popular movie star of the plains. "All Jazzed Up" is a two-reel L. K. comedy featuring Dan Rossell, Eva Novak and Phil Dunham. This trio of funsters keep the audience roaring with laughter.

Eyes Are Tubs. "Mickey" Houser in "Mickey Houser"

As a character study "Mickey" which will be shown at the Columbia Theatre 4 days commencing tomorrow, is a real work of art. You will never forget this adorable little waltz. The story of "Mickey" is vivid with action, much of which is laid in that wonderful twilight zone of comedy where half the laughs are wet with tears.

Mickey is a sweet, wholesome, mischievous little girl, raised by her foster father, an old miner, and her foster mother, a wise old Indian Squaw in the mountain country far away from the glamour and chill of the city.

Later she is sent to the city "to make a lady out of her" at the home of her aunt, a scheming, jealous hypocrite—and she doesn't find her path exactly strewn with roses. But through the old cheerful, high spirits of little Mickey prevail, and with her sheer happy perseverance she conquers what what seems unbearable burdens and difficulties for the little waltz. There are waltz and pathetic touches in "Mickey" as well as humor laid in delicacy and a sure touch.

Miss Normal is always a charming comedienne, but she is at her very best in this part—in this vivid and appealing comedy drama with real living characters—told without squash pies, battles or the seduction of the innocent heroine.

VITAGRAPH.

Double Feature Bill at the Exhibit Tomorrow. Larry Semon in "His Home Sweet Home," the Funniest Comedy You Ever Saw and Priscilla Dean in "Pretty Smooth."

A 100 per cent picture. That is what all the leading critics say about Larry Semon's latest Vitagraph comedy "His Home Sweet Home" which will be shown in addition to the feature picture at the Exhibit theatre tomorrow. In this comedy Larry has many exciting adventures, especially with his lovely young wife and a mother-in-law who keeps peevish every time she thinks about him. Larry is aided by Napoleon the big Vitagraph Chimpanzee, who in turn has the help of several little monkeys of lesser degree. The comedy is built on a big scale and there are several smashing scenes, one a bona fide dive from a tall building by Mr. Semon and another an explosion that blows up everything in sight excepting Larry, his lovely wife and the mother-in-law. This comedy is without doubt the funniest which has ever been shown here and we urge you not to miss it.

Two months ago Larry Semon made a two reel comedy titled "His Home Sweet Home" which was declared by all critics to be the funniest comedy that has ever been on the screen. This is the comedy that we are going to show in addition to "Pretty Smooth" tomorrow. If you are looking for the biggest laugh of your life you'll surely see "His Home Sweet Home."

HAROLD LOCKWOOD

Harold Lockwood's New Play Story of Intrigue and Mystery. See it at the Temple Tonight

"Shadows of Suspicion," the latest Screen Classic, Inc. play in which Harold Lockwood will be seen as the star, and which will be shown at the Temple theatre today, is a powerful drama of the Secret Service.

The play shows the deadly injustice which can be done a man in war time. It though he is not seen in the uniform of the country, he is, nevertheless, silently and secretly using every energy and nerve in his brain and body for the safety of his country. The play is full of thrilling and intense situations forcefully acted by this clever player, and the beautiful romance which runs through the gripping plot makes the story one of deep human sympathy.

Mr. Lockwood, as Cyril Hammer, the young Englishman, is seen in the most powerful role of his career and gives a characterization of the loyal patriot which will thrill all who see it.

Panhandles And South Webster Teams Defeated Handily

Record Crowd Enjoys Well Played Contests

Portsmouth had a big afternoon yesterday in a base ball way, in fact, it was perfect. There was nothing that transpired at the Millbrook pasture during the afternoon's double entertainment to mar the tranquility of William Galden and nearly 2,000 fans filled the grandstand to overflowing and enjoyed every minute of the pastime.

Portsmouth won both ends of the big bargain bill, the Steel team knocking the personification of the much feared South Webster team back in the first conflict and humiliating the town's champion by administering a thick coat of white wash to their mainstay, the final count being 6 to 0. The All Stars took the measure of the crack Panhandles in the afternoon after quite a struggle, handling the Capital City crew a tangle to the tune of 7 to 4.

The steady steelmen played rings around the village lads in the first game, both in the field and at bat and this accounts for the down-fall of the villagers.

While they put up a creditable performance and made a fair showing yet the folks from up B. and O. way hardly lived up to advance hopes for their boasted prowess fell away to nothing on this occasion. Yet it must be said to their credit they went down to defeat fighting to the end and with their faces to the foe. However, at no stage of the battle did they have a chance for the speedy industrial league champions simply swept their opponents off their feet by their aggressive and fast work.

Behind the steady and clever pitching of Joe Barber, the steel workers performed brilliantly in the field and supported their pitcher in splendid style at the bat. Barber was lassoed to do the heavy work for the steel representatives when it was learned that their star flinger Whitaker would not participate in the game on account of the serious illness of his child, who was suddenly taken sick with an attack of diphtheria.

Barber was in top form and he was master of the situation at all times, allowing the reputed sluggers from South Webster town but 4 singles. He set them back lining after lining while his colleagues were attending to the case of Mr. Townsend, the crack all-arounder of the village nine, and accumulated more than sufficient talley to get the verdict. Joe had the villagers completely bamboozled all the way and forced them to pop up dainty flies or send easy rollers to the infield. Just how effective was his pitching is reflected in the record of 20 putouts by Stalen at first base while the trio of outfielders had put but one out between them.

Both sides were blanked in the first but the steelmen started the preliminary going in the second. Grice beat out a pretty hard down the third base line and went to second when Townsend became careless and allowed the ball through him when it was returned to the box. Stillwell fouled to first and then Prediger rapped a double to center and Grice romped home with the first run of the contest. Later this proved sufficient to win with but this slight attack was only a forerunner of what was to come for after easily disposing of the money in the third inning, White's boys got busy with their bats and vigorously attacked the southern slugs of Townsend and jolted him almost beyond recognition, scoring four runs and putting the game on ice. In this wild round seven men came to bat and the four solid hits which boomed off their war clubs were accompanied by a couple of wild throws and a muffled fly ball to the outfield. The visitors appeared rattled and the six crowd may have had something to do with their defense crumbling and their nervousness. At the end of this inning there was much gloom around the South Webster bench and the village warriors appeared dazed for a moment and seemed to be at a loss to understand how it all happened—how it was possible for their great pitcher to be treated so brutally after so many conquests on other fields, principally on the old home lot with home umpiring and the encouragement of the crowd. Quite a bunch of folks from South Webster and vicinity accompanied their pets here to cheer them on to victory but they had little or no opportunity to make any noise. Townsend and his pals tightened up after the tidal stanza and prevented further run getting for the remainder of the combat. The southpaw lined up and allowed but two runners to get on in the last six frames. Evans singled in the fifth and stole and Shultz drew a base in the eighth and answered second while the pitcher held the ball. Both were left on the logs, however.

The attack of the visitors was mighty weak, only 6 runners getting on the paths during the fracas, 4 on hits while one drew a pass and another was hit by a pitched ball. One of these got as far as third and two wandered as far as second.

Barber not only pitched well but he fielded his position in sensational style, accepting 7 chances score of them hard hit bouncers. The first base play of Stalen was a feature and Johnson excellent in the field for the visitors while H. Potts contributed one of the best plays of the contest when he took Stillwell's fly in center and by a great throw doublet Haupt off first. He was applauded with an echo for his neat piece of work. The second half of the bill was exciting from the drop of the hat, and it was not won by the local contingent until the seventh inning had elapsed. It was then that Manager Joe Townsend's pupils kicked the Panhandles and Pitcher Vince all over the plate, which added to the tale of their previous accumulated, proved quite sufficient to win the contest. By accomplishing this feat the locals got sweet revenge and earned up the series, which now stands all even with the Capital City crew.

The enemy had scored twice in the fifth and added two more in the sixth, putting them in the lead when the locals staged their handsomely in the seventh and forgot to the front.

PENNY ANTE

bringing unrestrained joy to the big throng of fans.

The visitors got their first pair of tallies on a fluke home run by Baker, whose hit to left allowed the batter to negotiate the circuit, sending Mays in ahead of him, when the ball became lost in some weeds. This was a bad break for "Slim Jim" Wilkoff, the human ching bean, who was selected to do the hurling by Manager Brown.

men, and the tall fellow blew in the next inning when the enemy belted his delivery for 3 solid swipes, good for 2 scores. He finished out the round and was removed from the game in the sixth to allow Oscar Delotelle, local boy, just home from a successful sojourn in the professional ranks.

The crowd pleaded for Oscar to go into the box and he finished the game in style. He promptly put on the brakes and only two batters reacted first while he was on the slab, one getting on through a walk and the other by an error.

Shultz doubled in the first, but was left. But in the second the locals cooked up two scores. Barber walked for a starter and Keyser doubled to right, sending Barber to third. Valentin then delivered the punch, which tallied the two runs by driving to left for 2 bases. Another was added in the third when Barber laid down a bunt and beat it out. He scored on Keyser's triple to the right field fence, which Bailey just managed to touch.

This ended their scoring until the fourth, the seventh, when they merely loaded the cushions on singles by Shultz and Stewart and a pass to De Lotelle, Baker's fly to center admitted locals staged their handsomely in the seventh and forgot to the front.

Sadow And Stewart To Show Wares Here

Fight fans in the city were immensely pleased by the announcement in the Sunday Times that Young Sadow of Cincinnati and "Goo" Stewart of Wheeling, would stage a 10-round fight in the Millbrook Casino. ## THE WISHING PLANE

When Signor Angelo, with Sir Jack and Captain Brave, arrived in Lucca next day to attend the trial of the auto thief who tried to steal the car, Signor Angelo was more than startled. For the lawyers who had arrived ahead of him to defend the thief were the attorneys for a band of criminals which Angelo had tracked down the winter before in Italy.

The band had been stealing autos by the hundreds when the police sought his help. Signor Angelo told Jack and his friends, "I gave the police twelve of the fastest cars in our country and the most experienced men in the plant to drive them. I often times drove one of the cars myself. As soon as we heard of a car being stolen, we got on the trail of the thief and, with our racing cars, ran them down before they got far enough into the country to hide themselves from the police autos."

New - York - Day - By - Day

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—A page from the diary of a modern Samuel Pepys: Update and my laziness does trouble me. Louis Lee Arms called and in a high humor, Mistress Arms, who is Miss Mae Marsh of the cinemas, having been brought to bed of a fine child. All the neighbors out to see a pet dog that crashed against a tree pillar and was wrecked and there were killed and I am more resolved than ever never to buy the horrendous contraption.

POLLY AND HER PALS

LOUIS THE LAWYER

out perked up. Without booze and without theatres one might well expect the soul of Manhattan to shrivel and blow away. But it did nothing of the sort. Everybody seems to be having a pretty good time. The greatest current seems to be among the laboring man who mourns his glass of beer in the evening.

New York janitors are becoming more caslike every day in this time of keen competition for living quarters. However, the palm goes to the janitor of a house on West One Hundredth street. He is a glorified janitor, a sort of superintendent in overall.

A young woman was looking for an apartment and found one that would be created in the fall. The possible tenant wished to ask about service, hot water, and a few other details of interest to herself. But the janitor forestalled her.

"Have you any children?" he asked ominously.

"Why—I—er—yes—that is, I have one," she faltered.

"The pompous janitor considered this curiously for some time, then evidently decided to be generous, generous but not easy."

"Well, all right," he conceded. "You can have one, but you can't have any more."

Telephone service in New York has fallen off 60 percent, the efficiency of the city's telephone system is reported. It is atrocious and disgraceful. The other day a subscriber called an operator for making her wait 20 minutes before answering. The exchange girl was impatient and the subscriber asked for the manager.

"Get him if you can!" was the reply—then a blaring buzz in the ear and connection was severed.

Widow Aar told the children how these drills were part of Switzerland's method of keeping all its men folk healthy and strong and ready, if necessary, to go to war on a minute's notice.

"You see," she said, "our country is so small that we cannot raise a large army. So every man must be able to fight if our country is invaded or some other country tries to interfere with our independence."

Jack envied the boys when they drilled and I guess Jane rather envied the girls, too, because, when the children returned to Widow Aar's Landwehr found them a few minutes later going through many of the motions they had seen in the drills.

Her face was like an English rose beneath the dark blue bonnet. That bore the lettered army band. The only trimming on it. Of doughnuts she was prodigal. But of her favors chary. And every soldier fell in love with sweet Salvation Mary.

She served us smiling all day long. Was never cross or weary. And when she went the world became a desert dark and dreary. I'm mused out of khaki now. And trappings military. But still my heart is over there. With dear Salvation Mary.

Private or Otherwise. An Irishman walked into a hotel and noticed two men fighting at the far end of the room. Learning over the bar, he earnestly inquired of the bartender: "Is that a private fight, or can any one get into it?"

Leave It To George! George Ade was inveigling bitterly at the Chicago Athletic club against the proposed bachelor tax.

"By the way, George," said a broker, "I hear that Blane eloped last month."

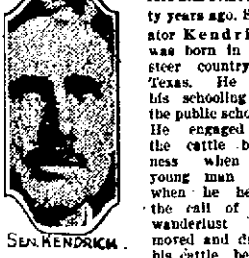

"Yes," said the humorist. "So he did. With a rich widow."

"How is he taking marriage?" asked the broker.

Mr. Ade smiled.

WHO'S WHO IN THE DAYS NEWS

SENATOR J. B. KENDRICK. When he walks down the green carpeted center aisle of the senate now, Senator John B. Kendrick does not appear much like the young cattle herder who went into the state of Wyoming driving cattle before him some forty years ago.

Kendrick was born in the state of Texas. He got his schooling in the public schools. He engaged in the cattle business when a young man and when he heard the call of the wanderlust he moved and drove his cattle before him. When the Kendrick herd was driven into Wyoming it made its last long drive, for here the owner settled and gained much respect that he soon found himself in politics and at last in the United States senate. He still is a cattle grower and an arch enemy of the big packers.

There are some of the important dates in the Wyoming senator's picturesque career: September 6, 1857, born in Cherokee county, Texas; January 20, 1891, married Eula Wulffgen of Greeley, Colo.; 1910-14, member of Wyoming senate; 1915, elected governor of Wyoming for a four-year term; 1919, elected to the United States senate for a six-year term.

Senator Kendrick is a Democrat and a thirty-third degree Mason.

Strong On The Foote. Patience—Saw young Niblick out playing golf yesterday.

"How's his game?" "Oh, he plays all games indifferent. 'Calling on you yet, isn't he?" "Oh, yes, and brings candy-some times."

"And flowers occasionally?" "Yes, occasionally."

"Says sweet things?" "Yes, at times."

"Whistles the wedding march?" "Yes, and that's as near as he gets to proposing."

"Think you ought to be disappointed?" "Oh, well, he always was strong on the 'foote,' you know,"—Yockers Statesman.

Paw Needed More Time. "I reckon I'd better speak to your paw tonight, Zallie," said the young woman who had won the heart and hand of the eldest daughter of "Gap" Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, Ark., and was desirous of obtaining her father's consent.

"Aw, Sanker, dearest," returned the maiden. "Paw had three of his best dogs plained night before last, and I'm afraid that the idly of losing three dogs and winning one son-in-law might strike him favorably. Ies wait till he has time to get the two transactions sorter separated in his mind."

New Rails Going Down

The N. & W. is laying one hundred pound rails from Hanging Rock into Ironton to replace the old eighty-five pound rails. The new rails are being laid on the east bound track and they are now as far as the Ironton yards with the work. About one hundred and fifty men are being employed to do the work as all the section crews in this district have combined and the work is progressing rapidly.

INVADING MINERS GO HOME PERSHING ARRIVES IN AMERICA

Special Trains Carry Miners To Home Grounds

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., Sept. 8.—The men were turned back, several hundred by approximately 3,000 men, largely through the efforts of C. Frank Kenney, president of District Number 17, of the mine workers' organization. Kenney made his views known to the Danville assembly through the heads of the various locals, and he spoke as a representative not only of the United Mine Workers, but also of Governor Crenshaw. Kenney made an address to the mine workers at Cleveland Sunday afternoon, and when a vote was taken on the procedure of the day, about one hundred radicals clamored for a continuance of the march to Logan. They brought into line by pressure of a minority of the congregation.

Three Hundred Refuse To Board.—Three hundred members of the Danville assembly declined to board the special, fearing they would be arrested on reaching the capital. The three hundred, carried side arms, it was said, and 2,000 miners, mostly from the Danville district, assembled at the Danville station Sunday night, and were met by the first special train at Danville and came out of the coal fields, and they said they believed the march would be enabled, as a result of the demonstration in force, to accomplish a peaceful conquest of the Logan county seat.

Miners' Statement of Governor.—The men, apparently, had accepted the statement of the governor that he would investigate conditions in Logan county, and they said they believed the march would be enabled, as a result of the demonstration in force, to accomplish a peaceful conquest of the Logan county seat.

The decision of the miners prevented the possibility of blood shed in an armed encounter between the miners and forces of the state and the United States government. Had the miners decided to cross the "dead line" which the governor had set at Danville, two hundred of United States troops were ready for action within six hours of the crossing of the line.

It was a train of the Danville assembly, and it was the first time since the war that a large number of men had been placed in a train of the Danville assembly, and it was the first time since the war that a large number of men had been placed in a train of the Danville assembly.

"Wilson Mistakes Visions Of Ambition For The Inspiration Of Idealism"

AKRON, O., Sept. 8.—President Wilson in his defense before the country of the League of Nations covenant "is mistaking the visions of ambition for the inspiration of idealism," Senator Reed, Democrat of Missouri, declared in a message meeting here yesterday. The Missouri senator asserted that in Mr. Wilson's interview "the calm outlook will recognize only the vapors of ambition and the insensibility of the man who refuses to repudiate the policies under which this country has become great," declared Senator Reed.

"Governor Fays Frequent," "The president has been so often in a general interview the politicians of the army," said the Missouri senator. "They move forward in the least phantasm, but the soldiers are not so easily deceived. His battalions of evil names, and his army an assembly of demagogues and scoundrels."

While the president "talks much of the duty of sacrifice," he rides "at government expense on special trains," he said.

Wilson Pounds Stone Wall Of Patriotism, Says G. O. P. Chairman

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—In a statement issued here today Will H. Hays, secretary of the Republican national committee declared that President Wilson was pounding against a stone wall in attempting to have the peace treaty ratified without reservations.

Chairman Hays' statement in full follows:

"I agree with the President that the treaty will be ratified but the ratification will be accompanied by reservations absolutely safeguarding the full independence and freedom of action of this republic. That is the simple fact which the President may as well recognize first as last. At present he is only pounding against a stone wall of patriotism which has already become impassable and is daily increasing in width, strength and height. The com-

PRESIDENT ENTERS HEART OF NORTHWEST

ON BOARD PRESIDENT WILSON'S SPECIAL TRAIN, Sept. 8.—Carrying his appeal for acceptance of the peace treaty into the heart of the northwest, President Wilson began today a week of travel that will take him over the Rockies and all the way to the Pacific coast.

Two addresses were on the president's crowded schedule again today, one at the auditorium at Omaha and the other at an evening mass meeting in Sioux Falls, South Dakota.

Departing at midnight from Des Moines, where he had spent Sunday, the president reached Omaha some hours before the address but he wanted to sleep late and local plans had been adjusted so as to give him a full night's rest.

On the advice of his physician, Dr. Cary T. Grayson, the president is conserving his strength for the "three weeks of travel and speech-making" ahead of him. After his breathing spell in Des Moines, Mr. Wilson was said to be in excellent trim.

It was principally on account of a slight cold appearing in the president's voice that Dr. Grayson prescribed against any platform speeches. Although his voice is holding up well, it has broken once or twice during his addresses and to one audience he remarked that the circumstances were due to "the remnants of a Paris cold."

On the presidential private car, Monday, the president and Mrs. Wilson were well taken care of. Mrs. Wilson's maid came along and there is one of the White House cooks aboard to prepare their meals.

The remainder of the train also is fitted up with a view to reducing the fatigue and inconvenience of the ten thousand mile trip. The dining car is to be carried all the way and there is a club car with the newspaper, correspondence, secret service men and secretaries use as a lounge space.

The president and Mrs. Wilson dine privately, but Mr. Wilson strolls back into the club car occasionally for a chat with the other members of the party.

ROYAL WELCOME EXTENDED AMERICAN GENERAL HERO ON ARRIVAL IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Pershing is greeted "quite fairly" across the waters of the bay by the familiar figure on the bridge. They made up the vanguard of the vast army of welcome which already had packed Battery park and over flowed into the streets beyond, waiting patiently until General Pershing had been greeted by Vice-President Marshall and the secretary of war and was ready to cross the river to the great city that was eager to pay him tribute.

The great throng came up to her pier at 8 o'clock and as she was being warded into her berth there was a tremendous valley of cheering from the crowd assembled there. General Pershing, smiling in appreciation, with head bowed, bowed repeatedly. In response, one to forget his dignity in the enthusiasm at returning home and waving his cap as he saluted the happy throng.

Dignitaries Extend Welcome.—At the pier were many dignitaries of nation, state and city and it was there he was welcomed on behalf of the nation.

The first daylight band of 100 pieces on board the ship, the members of which had served throughout all the fighting in which the veteran had been engaged, began playing in response to the welcoming strains from the pier and "HAIL HAIL, THE GANGS ALL HERE" and other songs mingled with the cheers.

The Leviathan docked at 8:15. General Pershing stepped ashore at 10:20 o'clock. Waiting for him at the end of the gang plank was Secretary Baker with hands outstretched, Belmont, J. Edgar, General Pershing's father-in-law and Mrs. Warren, with William C. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury. Back of this little group were General Peyton C. March, chief of staff, a score of generals and members of the major's committee of welcome.

After the first greetings were over, General Pershing made this statement to the Associated Press:

"There isn't anything of consequence to say in circumstances like these. It is overwhelming, overpowering. To say that I am glad to be home is superfluous. I accept this in the name of the brave fellows who came over and served to the best of their ability, making our success possible."

OPENING STOCKS

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Although industrial conditions over the weekend showed no material change, prices at the opening of today's stock market session suggested confidence in a satisfactory outcome of existing labor difficulties. United States Steel opened unchanged, but soon advanced half a point, Bethlehem advancing a point, with as much for Bethlehem Consolidated, and 2 points for Inland Steel.

THE MATTER OF DISCIPLINE

An army is said to travel on its stomach. It is certain an army wins victories because of its discipline. Congress is assuming an attitude towards both as though it were a crime to furnish food and maintain order and authority.

Realizing, however, that there is no degree of popularity in the first it is placing special stress upon the latter. Its sniping committee is working overtime a sort of dragnet and hauling in every witness, who has a tale of horror to unfold.

A court martial is a sort of bugbear. Somehow its very name carries the impression of mercilessness and that is not far from the truth. But a court martial is a military necessity. It must be stern and it can not have sympathy with the individual because on his case may turn the fate of the whole army and a whole nation. For the same reason its judgments must be severe and to the civilian mind out of all proportion to the breach or crime.

In considering it we must bear in mind that to some extent the American army entered the contest under disadvantages. It had to compare with and it had to fight up to the standard of men of long training and experience. It could not do this without the observance of the strictest discipline. To enforce that was the supreme concern of the officers and commanders. Perhaps, no doubt, in instances, this carried them to harshness and extreme, but it had not then they would not have been human, they would not have been Americans. Still, in the fact, that they were Americans we have the guarantee they generally judged true to the great American quality of fair play, and in the other fact, that they freely and unflinchingly shared the hazard of their men and that they were diligent and tireless, even to the point of anxiety and caution in providing for their safety and welfare, we have the assurance that they would not of conscience and malignity authority work their wrong and injustice.

Our glory and our pride is in the fact that from the quiet and ease of peace, the farm, the factory, the counter, the desk, in two short years we called the untrained, but brave and sturdy youth of the land, drilled them and threw them into the most dreadful turmoil the madness of man ever precipitated and so nobly did they acquit themselves that they brought victory twelve months before it was reckoned their power would be felt. Our duty to ourselves, our obligations to these gallant boys is to make that glory and pride the predominant passion of the nation and not let it be sullied or denied by quibbling and fault finding as to incidents.

Those who indirectly assail the honor of the army are not doing it for the sake of the country, not to right the wrong done, but for evil and selfish purpose.

MR. PLUMB AND THE RAILROADS

ATTORNEY Plumb proposes that the government take over the railroads and operate them under a tri-partnership, the government, the bond holders of the purchase price and the employees, the bond holders getting six per cent and the government and the employees dividing the profits.

That "listens" good to some bondholders, whose roads are in a state of chronic bankruptcy, but it has one fatal defect as a partnership arrangement, it doesn't divide the losses among the partners according to interest and prospect profits. If the scheme should prove unprofitable then the people would be called upon to foot the bills.

That it would fail present experience along much the same line makes the next thing to a certainty.

There is said to be more ways of killing a dog than choking him with butter. By a like token the ways of a legislature making an ass of itself are infinite and varied. Witness the senate asking President Wilson for the terms of the treaties he is negotiating. And it got properly snubbed for its idleness.

Apart this high cost of living frays is the government doing anything towards restraining the New York milliners in their purpose to double the headgear seasons and have four instead of two?

The Columbus Dispatch says there are still a few people who walk for pleasure. Yes, there are and darn few compared with those who walk because they have to, the old buzzer having gone bad.

The situation is not without hope. They do say the errors in the enrolling of legislative bills can be corrected without calling the assembly together again.

Did England mean to convey a delicate compliment to these United States, when it chose Lord Grey, a teetotaler as an ambassador hereto?

Billy Sunday is going back to Boston. Then we must surmise the best Billy got out of it the first time was a dogfall with the devil.

THE WISHING PLANE

BY WILLIS WINTER

When Signor Angelo, with Sir Spudgie, Jack and Captain Brave, arrived in Laverne next day to attend the trial of the auto thief who tried to steal the car, Signor Angelo was more than startled. For the lawyers who had arrived ahead of him to defend the thief were the attorneys for a band of criminals which Angelo had helped track down the winter before in Italy.

"The band had been stealing autos by the hundreds when the police sought my help," Signor Angelo told Jack and his friends. "I gave the police twelve of the fastest cars in our factory and the most experienced men in the plant to drive them. I often thus drove one of the cars myself. As soon as we heard of a car being stolen we got on the trail of the thieves and, with our racing cars, ran them down before they got far enough into the country to hide themselves or the stolen autos."

"This is probably the first of many attempts to get revenge. From now on I'll have to watch out all the time. I believe they'll like to do more to me."

Jack and just about three enough to get his breath—and a good night's sleep before another big holiday at the village arrived. Widow Aar and the men had told Jack that the girls and boys and men and women would stage great drills during the day. So, when the day did arrive, Jack and Jane, Ladydear, Captain Brave and Widow Aar left the chaperon early in the morning and hurried to the village center.

Jack had seen school children and the V. M. C. A. boys drilling at home with long sticks, dumb bells, Indian clubs and such things, but he never had seen so many folk going through the drills at one time. When the men performed it seemed as though there was an army of them. They drilled in an immense, open meadow from which the hay had been cut. A director on a tall platform led them.

Widow Aar told the children how these drills were part of Switzerland's method of keeping all its men folk healthy and strong and ready, if necessary, to go to war on a minute's notice.

"You see," she said, "our country is so small that we cannot raise a large army. So every man must be able to fight if our country is invaded or some other country tries to interfere with our independence."

Jack envied the boys when they drilled and I guess Jane rather envied the girls, too, because, when the children returned to Widow Aar's Ladydear found them a few minutes later going through many of the motions they had seen in the drills.

New - York - Day - By - Day

BY

O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—A page from the diary of a modern Samuel Pepys, the City and day by day does trouble me. Louis Lee Arns called and in a high humming, Mistress Arns, who is Miss Mae Marsh of the cinema, having been brought to bed of a fine child. All the neighbors out to see a picture today that crashed against a lamp post and was wrecked and three were killed and I am more resolved than ever never to buy the horrid cinema contraption.

At six o'clock to make an account of my debts and they grow heavier each week. My wife seemed very pretty today in a white pleated skirt and a blue coat. This day I tried to read Sir Harold B. Wright's book but could not fasten my mind upon it albeit he uses "like" as a conjunction most elegantly. To luncheon with J. Gregory, the scrivener, and I paid the check with five francs.

Through the town on the beach, my wife and I, and we made magnets of the advertisements on the side walls and in sheer bravado I did give a lady a seat and asked a penniless fellow to give her companion likewise a seat. At Three Square we saw Mr. Fox the film maker, M. Glass, the pamphleteer, and A. Pale, the play critic.

Along to my book seller to buy a great dictionary, but could find none to my liking and to call on W. Johnston, the editor, who was merry with good fortune, having just sold a serial and a moving picture scenario the same morning and with Mistress Johnston took the evening train for Los Angeles.

Hope where my wife and the maid with great auto had made shift to split the great lion that J. Wells, the singer, sent his countryship, heart. Sang with great feeling the old air "On The Banks of The Wabash," with my triangle accompaniment and with great content to bed.

Theatricals Manhattan seemed to struggle along pretty well. Strangely, I did not hear a complaint about the lack of Theatricals. People immediately found other amusements. The public parks were crowded. Dining out perked up. Without booze and without theatres one might well expect the soul of Manhattan to shrivel and blow away. But it did nothing of the sort. Exuberantly seems to be having a pretty good time. The greatest unrest seems to be among the laboring men who murmur his glass of beer in the evening.

New York janitors are becoming more exasperated every day in this time of keen competition for living quarters. However, the pain goes to the janitor of a house on West One Hundredth street. He is a glorified janitor, a sort of superintendent in overalls.

A young woman was looking for an apartment and found one that would be vacated in the fall. The possible tenant wished to ask about service, hot water, and a few other details of interest to herself. But the janitor forestalled her.

"Have you any children?" he asked ominously.

"What's that?" she asked. "I have one," she faltered.

The pompous janitor considered this

WHO'S WHO IN THE DAYS NEWS

SENATOR J. B. KENDRICK

When he walks down the green carpeted center aisle of the senate now, Senator John B. Kendrick does not appear much like the young cattle herder who went into the state of Wyoming driving cattle before him some forty years ago. Senator Kendrick was born in the state of Texas. He got his schooling in the public schools. He engaged in the cattle business when a young man and when he heard the call of the wanderlust he moved and drove his cattle before him. When the

SEN. KENDRICK

Kendrick herd was driven into Wyoming it made its last long drive, for there the owner settled and gained such great respect that he soon found himself in politics and at last in the United States senate. He still is a cattle grower and an arch enemy of the big packers.

Here are some of the important dates in the Wyoming senator's picturesque career: September 6, 1857, born in Cherokee county, Texas; January 20, 1891, married Lulu Wulff of Greeley, Colo.; 1904, member of Wyoming senate; 1915, elected governor of Wyoming for a four-year term; 1917, elected to the United States senate for a six-year term.

Senator Kendrick is a Democrat and a thirty-third degree Mason.

For some time, then, evidently decided to be generous, generous but not easy.

"Well, all right," he conceded. "You can have one, but you can't have any more."

Telephone service in New York has fallen off 61 percent, the office of the city clerk reports. It is atrocious and disgraceful. The other day a subscriber or reborn an operator for making her wait 20 minutes before answering. The exchange girl was impatient and the subscriber asked for the manager. "Get him if you can," was the reply—then a hissing buzz in the ear and connection was severed.

DOC KOKO'S KOLUM

Salvation Mary I danced with lovely Wendell. I danced with Estella. And dabbled on the promenade path with charming Isabella. But, lo, of Master Christmas's share Was still extremely wary. Until I crossed the sea to France And met Salvation Mary.

Her face was like an English rose Beneath the dark blue bonnet That bore the lettered army band. The only trifling on it. Of doughnuts she was prodigal. But of her favors chary. And every soldier fell in love With sweet Salvation Mary.

She served us smiling all day long Was never cross or wary. And when she went the world became A desert dark and dreary. I'm ministered out of Khaki now And trappings military. But still my heart is over there With dear Salvation Mary.

VETERANS IN REUNION AT CAPITAL

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 8.—Many hundreds of union veterans of the civil war continued to arrive on all incoming trains this morning for the annual G. A. R. encampment, which will be held this week in Columbus, opening formally tomorrow.

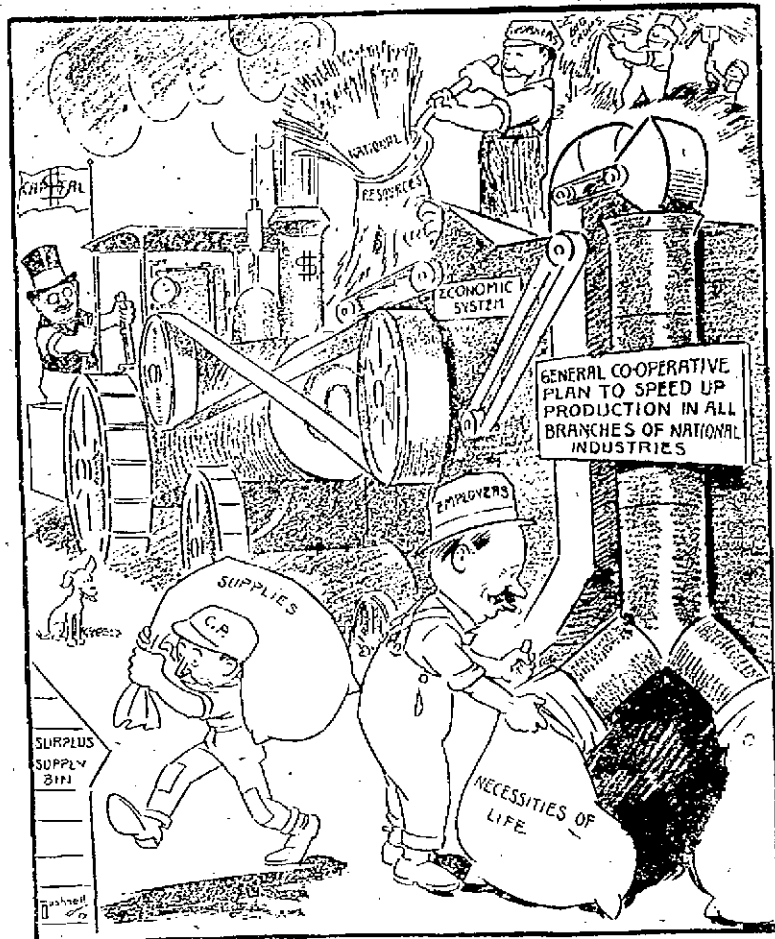

Old soldiers from many states with the west thus far leading the east in representatives, are in the city and thousands more, officials in charge of the encampment say, are coming. Special trains and regular trains yesterday brought the vanguard—thousands who, as boys, wore the union blue in the days of '61.

The first comers spent the Sabbath night seeing "Boys" from Pennsylvania, Ohio and eastern states chummed with former comrades from states as far west as the middle during the day, recounting by-gone days in camp or battle.

Columbus have been asked to see that the veterans are housed and fed during the encampment. A few old soldiers, wearing their battle-scarred uniforms and medals for valor in action, were conspicuous among those who arrived.

A parade in which the veterans and soldiers who fought in the world war, are to take part is to be held Wednesday as the big feature of the encampment. Governor Cox, former governor James H. Campbell, who is director general and chairman of the encampment, Mayor Kuhn and Commander in Chief Clarence E. Adams, are scheduled to give addresses at the grand official meeting and reception for the veterans at Memorial Hall this evening.

PANHANDLES

Barber was rather fishy in his routine, playing a nifty game in the field and shared the hitting honors with Stewart and Keyser, each driving out a pair of hits.

Staten contributed the fielding feature of the game when he spared White's liner in the eighth, taking the sphere out of the sultry air with one hand. The crack first-sacker nearly went out his cap in response to the tenuous applause of the crowd. Later at short he excelled in the field for the visitors and he led his team at bat with 2 safe swats. His work around the short field was high class. The score:
